A space that truly feels like you

Your home, it's where you work, sleep, learn, meditate, cook, garden, work out and cool down. It expresses who you are. Now more than ever. So why not design it that way? We couldn't agree more. At Moduleo, we are firm believers of self expression. It's why we design floors in the first place. Because a space that truly feels like you, begins with a floor that feels like you.

And as for your own unique style? Our Roots collection is as diverse and vivid as nature itself. From warm classics like oak and walnut to serene, natural stones and playful terrazzo. Creating the Roots collection: a look behind the scenes

“When you are searching for a floor, don’t just decide with your eyes. Be mindful of the colour, the size, the structure, the pattern, the feeling it evokes, ...”

A talk with Cindy Van Moorlegem and Elise Bylo, Moduleo’s very own Brand Director and Design Manager, on matching your interior with your personality and the trends that ultimately shaped the Moduleo Roots collection.

Let’s dive right in. How and where did it all start for Moduleo? Cindy: “Well, in 2022 we celebrated our tenth birthday, so we’ve been around for quite a while now. We were the first to produce luxury vinyl tiles on European soil. The funny thing about vinyl is that it’s such an interesting material, even though a lot of people don’t necessarily think of it that way. For one, it’s one of the most durable materials out there. It’s easy to maintain, install and recycle. Furthermore, it’s beautiful, affordable, and so much more versatile than wood or stone.”

Elise: “Yes, just think about it, you’d probably never pick a walnut floor for your bathroom. Wood and water aren’t exactly a great match. But with a vinyl floor that looks and feels like real walnut, you don’t have to worry about that. You can even take it a step further with matching skirtings and profiles. Or a staircase in the exact same style. It’s never just about the floor, you see. We always envision the bigger picture. The complete spatial experience.”

Cindy: “And then there’s the sensorial aspect too of course. Vinyl actually soaks up the sound of your footsteps. It also feels warm and comfy. So, when we’re designing a floor in our Design Studio, it’s never limited to looks. We always think about how it feels and sounds too. How it affects every one of your senses.”

Cindy Van Moorlegem

Elise: “Every detail has to make sense. Our designs have to feel, sound and look just right. We’ve always done this, but in the last couple of years we noticed more and more of our customers paying attention to it as well.”

That’s probably not the only change you noticed in these past couple of years. Which other trends do you have on your radar? Cindy: “First of all, a lot of us are more attentive to the materials, colours and textures we let into our home. We really reconnected with our surroundings. And with nature too. We even want to pull the outside indoors. Rightfully so, because it can have a huge effect on your wellbeing.”

“We really want to encourage people to play around with it. Because that’s how you’ll ultimately find a floor that feels just right for you.”

Elise: “We also noticed the rise of tactility in materials. People want to feel things again. The fact that we’re living in an increasingly digital world, where everything takes place on a flat screen, only adds to this.”

Cindy: “We reconnected with ourselves too. People got thinking. What’s my identity? How can I express myself? In my clothing. In my home. They want their interior to match their own unique personality and have a bigger say in creating it too. And that freedom to be who you are and express it in your home, is something we firmly believe in at Moduleo. It’s why we design floors in the first place. So that people can create their own unique living spaces.”

Elise: “But we don’t just want to offer them the floors to do so, we want to inspire them too. Show them what’s possible and trigger their imagination. That’s why we browsed the world of design, architecture, art and even fashion to curate some of the most exciting new trends, materials, patterns, colours and finishes. And we brought them together into six captivating interior themes.”

Sounds exciting. Tell us more about the creative process behind the Roots collection and these six interior themes.

Elise: “Well, we always look at what’s going on in the world first. In this case, it was getting back in touch with ourselves, nature and our surroundings. From there on we searched for ways to translate these macro trends into actual design characteristics. The sensory and tactile features of the Roots collection are the result of this.”

Cindy: “For the six interior themes, we consulted some trend forecasters and visual artists to brainstorm with. With the global trends and our own design vision in mind, we mixed and matched samples from our Roots collection with different types of fabrics, minerals, plants, furniture, and art until everything felt just right. It was a very intuitive process. Ultimately, we ended up with a refreshing, versatile collection and six totally different interior themes.”

Elise: “Each theme comes with its own aesthetic and different moodboards. It doesn’t mean you have to stick to one in particular though. On the contrary. Once you dive into one theme world, you still have so many options. You could go for a lighter or darker colour palette. Serene patterns or more tropical ones. Futuristic textures or classical ones. There are no limits really.”

Cindy: “We mixed and matched samples from our Roots collection with different types of fabrics, minerals, plants, furniture, and art until everything felt just right.”

All the more reason to draw inspiration from these new territories and enrich your home with dark tones, silver weathered metallics and exciting new structures. Combined with retro-futuristic styling in lighting, art, and collectible design, this palette brings you to other galaxies, but still feels familiar.

Made and designed in Belgium

The Belgian way

We are proud of our Belgian roots. Belgian design is known and acknowledged all over the world. Because we have a unique point of view on the world and a distinct way of doing things. We're eager to pick up on what's happening in society by being open minded and empathetic. Not just in design, but in fashion, art, architecture, and music too. Just think of Ensor, Magritte, Horta or Dries Van Noten. At the same time, our modest nature always keeps us with our feet firmly on the ground. And that's how we are able to find the perfect balance between creativity and realism in our designs. Time and time again.

100% Belgian 100% Moduleo

From researching and testing to designing and producing, everything is done in-house. Right here in Belgium. Why? So we can be in charge of the entire production process and push the boundaries of our craftsmanship in every single step of it. It's easier for us, better for the planet and good for you. Because your vinyl floor will turn out exactly the way we envisioned it. Made to last. On trend. And fit to match your unique way of living.

We design & develop in-house

Strong floors Small footprint

To us, sustainability starts off with making our floors in Belgium. So we can keep a close eye on the production process and have full control over all raw materials. But that's only the beginning of the story. We are taking concrete actions to reduce our environmental impact by 2040. No empty statements, we just take action based on science-based facts to deliver our sustainability promise.

Powered by the wind

A third of the energy that powers our factory comes from wind turbines. And that's a lot. It equals the energy of more than 20 000 households. And our search for new green energy sources continues.

Cooled down by the river

When it comes to smart green solutions, we simply go with the flow. The river Scheldt's flow, to be specific. We use an innovative closed circuit that pumps river water and cools down the factory machines. That's how we save a maximum amount of energy.

Recycled materials

Our floors are fully recyclable and made with recycled materials of verified origin. Next to that, we only work with eco-friendly packaging solutions. And simply use less of it altogether.

Minimal waste

Anything we don't use, we reuse. PVC waste from the production process always comes back to the circuit.

Clean inks and coatings

To print our patterns and designs, we only use Reach approved raw materials and water-based instead of solvent-based ink. The same goes for the protective layer. This way, the air in your home stays clean and fresh. And it helps us cut down the overall carbon footprint of our products.
